This is a World War II combat simulator where teams of players fight each other in timed precision planes. This is currently exclusive to SHIELD Android TV, and with the main attraction being a series of massive PvP combat scenarios, it's easy to see why. While the elder is temporarily distracted from his work, the curious duo intervene and accidentally release a terrifying and ancient spirit. Jemby valiantly rushes to fight the creature, but is unsuccessful and barely manages to pass the magical amber needed to seal the spirit and save the day. Here's a good example of a game that doesn't have to be exclusive to SHIELD - it's a "retro" shooter that can pair with just about anything, and the genre was pretty easy to adapt to the touch. The original came out on Steam and consoles last year, and in fact there are already a few clones published on the Play Store. At least this version is discounted compared to other releases.
